TOUGHS ATTACK A FISHING PARTY.

Woman and Child Slain and Man and Boy Wounded.

ONE TOUGH ALSO KILLED.

The Tent in Which the Fishing Party Was Camped Was Fired Into.

STUTTGART, Ark., June 12.—A fishing party, consisting of one Thompson and another man, their wives and three children, camping on White River, five miles below St. Charles, were attacked Saturday night by toughs. The tent was shot into and one woman and a child killed and a man and a boy seriously wounded. John Kemp, one of the toughs, was killed by Thompson. Sheriff Smith says he will apprehend the whole gang. Indignation in the vicinity is great. There is no known cause for the outrages. Particulars are hard to get owing to distance from railroads.

DEBS WAS SLEEPING.

The A. R. U. President Surrendered Himself at 11 O'Clock A. M.

CHICAGO, June 12.—The mysterious disappearance of President E. V. Debs of the A. R. U. pestered out to-day. He presented himself at the United States Marshal's office at 11 a. m., after having been lost to the authorities for two hours. Mr. Debs said that he had gone to sleep at a friend's house, and had not awakened until this morning.

When Debs, whose term of imprisonment in Woodstock Jail was to begin last night, had not been found up to 10 o'clock yesterday, there was considerable uneasiness. United States Deputy Marshals had been searching for the missing man since 5 o'clock last night, but no trace of him had been found. At 10 o'clock, Debs surrendered himself to the Marshals. Debs was found to be in a house named Debs, which he had been holding on bond of $1000. Debs was given his liberty until 5 o'clock. In this action he released himself from the bonds under which he had been held and was consequently set at liberty without bail. Various theories explanatory of Debs' absence were advanced and some of his friends expressed fears for his personal safety, but it was TURNED OVER TO THE CITY.

Dedication of the New Post-Dispatch Lake in Carondelet Park.

GALA DAY IN THE SOUTH END

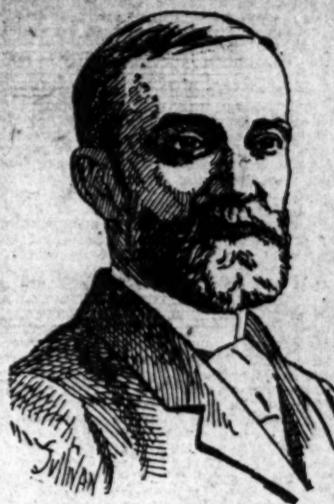

Children and Patrons of the Carondelet Public Schools Picnicked and Took Part in the Exercises.

Carondelet Park was the focusing point of the southern suburbs all day Wednesday. All day long crowds poured into the pretty enclosure to attend the triple picnic of the Carondelet public schools. The annual outing for the children had been combined to lend becoming importance to the ceremony of the dedication of the new Post-Dispatch lake.

A prettier day for an outing could not have been made to order. The opportune rain of Tuesday night cooled the air and laid the dust and put a new coat of green over grass and trees and gave vigor into the perfume of spring flowers.

The exercises of the day were under the direction of the Carondelet Improvement Association, consisting of the teachers and patrons of the Des Peres, Blow and Carondelet schools. And what a big day they made of it. From the time the band struck up the last tired pleasure-seeker turned homeward the fun was fast and furious. Nothing lagged. There were games of all sorts going on, and the children and the other staff and representatives of the committee were children for a day, and helped make fun for their juniors in years, but not in size.

The exercises of the day began early in the morning with the march of the school children to the park. At 10 o'clock the pupils of the Des Peres school left their building, marching south on Michigan avenue to Loughborough, where the Blow school children fell in line. The march was then south on Michigan avenue to Robert decided after much labor to defer the matter until the financial condition of the committee would again be revived. In the fall of 1894 our Delegate, Mr. James Murphy, by his energy, introduced and passed a bill through the Legislature of Delaware authorizing $4,000 toward construction of a lake in our Park, but for some reason the members of the legislature did not act on it, and the appointment of our people who had every reason to feel the unjust treatment accorded them, became O'Fallon Park. It is now that we are more favorably considered by the Municipal Assembly. The circumstances the prospects for the lake appeared rather gloomy, although the committee were not without faith in the movement. On the evening of Feb. 1, 1895, our hopes

Monster Meeting of Free Silver Men at Memphis.

ALL SHADES OF POLITICS.

Strong Addresses Favoring Free Coinage and Denouncing the Gold Conspiracy.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., June 12.—The largest meeting ever held in this country for the discussion of a single economic question convened at the Auditorium in this city today. Certainly no such outpouring of men of all classes, from the tiller of the soil to the representatives of the bands and bar, the artisan and the merchant, representing all political parties, but unanimous upon at least one principle of governmental policy, has ever been seen in the South. While an overwhelming majority of the delegates to-day's "Honest Money" Convention,

SENATOR STEWART. called in the interest of free and unlimited coinage of silver at a rate of 16 to 1, came from this country. The representation includes almost every State south of the Ohio River and west of the Mississippi, from the Puget Sound to Key of Florida, from the Mexican boundary to the Potomac. It may more properly be called a monster mass-meeting than a convention, and it is the largest gathering of representation, and it is not held under the authority of any political organization.

The promoters of the conference claim no connection with the political party demonstration. They say they are generous enough to accord to their opponents, the most moderate advocates. They say this spontaneous manifestation of strong and growing public sentiment may be traced directly to the convention of May 23, at which Senator Carter, in the guise of honor, taking their cue therefrom, invited an invitation was extended to the friends of free silver to participate in a counter demonstration, and that the friends did not expect the expectations of any of the leaders of the movement.

While the gathering comprises Democrats, Republicans, and Progressives, it is apparently non-partisan, there is much of interest to the political observer.

The delegates arrived on every train yesterday and all last night and were still coming this morning. There was over 1,500 on hand when the convention was called to order at 2 o'clock to-day.

The convention met at 2 p. m. and was opened by Chairman W. N. Brown of the Memphis Bimetallic League. Then there was prayer by Judge Estes and a welcoming speech by ex-Congressman Casey.

Senator Turp of Indiana was made permanent chairman. There was no temporary organization.

The addresses of the day were delivered by Hon. Alex. Delmar of California and Senator Turp of Indiana.

COIN'S FUNCTIONS.

Senator Turp's Discussion of the Uses of Money Metals.

Mr. President and Gentlemen of the Convention: The coined money of the Government, in full meaning stands four square to all commercial transactions of the people. It has four functions or uses. It is a medium of exchange; it is a measure of values; it is a means for redemption of its paper currency; it is a legal tender for the payment of debts. It is also a store of value, besides coined money which has some of those powers and uses—it has all. Of these functions two are created by the Government, and two are artificial.

These gentlemen are divided into and serve on Committees of Streets and Alleys, Finance, Parks, Sewers, and a special Social Lake Committee. Our duties are to encourage and assist in every way possible the improvement of the town, to promote the welfare of this city, that is, by procuring all the improvements made in our streets and alleys, the construction of new buildings, the removal of old ones, the improvement of our harbors, the opening of streets and alleys, the construction of a wharf and the suppression of nuisances.

Another personage in the story of Irene was Anna, a young, dark-haired Irish girl, 16 years old, who is known as the "Belle of Little Oklahoma." She is fairly good-looking, has a well-proportioned physique, and seems to be a coquette with the men of the community.

Czar Frankenstein Prepares to Enforce Collections of Cigars.

"What have you to say now?" was the query made to Dr. Frankenstein by the Post-Dispatch reporter Wednesday. He smiled triumphantly as he spoke, at the same time pointing to his rain gauge, which showed that there was a downpour of one-half inch Tuesday night.

"When I said it rained Tuesday before sunrise I knew where I was," he said. "I have no doubt that I will collect on all outstanding bills. Then you will also realize that I predicted it would rain. It is raining now, old horses tick to have people talking about getting caught in rain storms, and I reckon a goodly number got drenched last evening, because they didn't make the predictions."

"Well, what can we expect for to-day?" queried the reporter.

"For to-day nothing but clear weather with moderate temperature in sight. I have fixed things up to Friday evening and will take a few days of much-needed rest."

"The temperature has varied but little in the East. At New York Wednesday morning it was 68, at Chicago 65, at Boston 62, at Philadelphia 64, at Cincinnati 60, at Washington 70, at New Orleans 74. SIGNIFICANT TESTIMONY.

In answer to questions twelve out of fourteen governors of Western and Southern States declare themselves unequivocally in favor of the independent free coinage of silver by the United States; all agree that a majority of the Democrats of their States favor the free coinage of silver; most of them testify that the Republicans are divided about equally and a few assert that a majority of the Republicans of their States favor free coinage.

These fourteen governors have all been elected within three, most of them within two and some within one year. As men versed in politics elected by the people of their respective States to the highest executive offices their testimony as to the sentiments of the people is of the highest character. If they do not know the opinions of the people on a public question of paramount interest and importance, who does?

It is impossible to overestimate the significance of this evidence of the widespread prevalence of popular sentiment favorable to free silver coinage among the people of all parties in the West and South. It shows that both great parties and especially the Democratic party will be confronted with a demand for the endorsement of the free and equal coinage of gold and silver at a ratio of 16 to 1, which cannot be brushed aside or satisfied with a straddle.

MR. CLEVELAND'S DOUBLE DEALING.

Atty.-Gen. Harmon has been giving guarded expression to his views since his appointment and they are wholly at variance with those of the great majority of Democrats. They are at variance with the policy of the Democratic party as defined in its platform and by the legislation of the Democratic majority in Congress. Passing by the new Attorney-General's adherence to gold monometalism, in which he agrees with Mr. Cleveland in opposition to a majority of the party and the party platform, he affirms that some trusts are illegal and some are not and that he is opposed to the income tax. He characterizes it as "a ride that it was well to unhorse."

The Democratic party pledged itself to income taxation and Congress, with Mr. Cleveland's approval, carried out the pledge. It pledged itself to the destruction of all trusts. Mr. Cleveland accepted this platform and himself denounced "the communism of wealth and capital" and wrote, "as we view the achievements of aggregated capital, we discover the existence of trusts, combinations and monopolies, while the citizen is struggling far in the rear, or is trampled to death under an iron heel."

Mr. Cleveland's stubbornness was pleaded in extenuation of his retention of Olney after he proved himself a friend of the trusts, but how is the President's boasted honesty to be reconciled with his promotion of a man who as Attorney-General has befriended the trusts he denounced and his appointment of a new Attorney-General who takes a diametrically opposite view of both the trusts and the income tax, from that publicly professed by Mr. Cleveland and indorsed by the party?

How is it possible to escape the conclusion that the President is false to his own profession of political faith and is making the betrayal of his party at every point the surest pathway to his favor?

THE MONEY QUESTION.
NO. 2—PLENTY OF MONEY A GOOD THING.

Of course, we mean real money, primary money, metal money, gold and silver. Observe—not gold or silver, but gold and silver. It takes both to make a plenty.

Every man in the United States will admit that a plenty of money is a good thing for himself. Every business firm will admit that a plenty of money is a good thing for itself. And every bank will admit that a plenty of money is a good thing for it. And every man will admit the same thing. In short, every fair-minded and level-headed man instinctively recognizes that a plenty of money is good for an individual, a family, a business firm, a corporation, a community, a State and the country.

Moreover, such practices reflect upon the institution itself and indicate a moral weakness in the management. A college which turns out such graduates fails in its purpose and should reform itself without delay.

A high standard of honor among the students and moral efficiency in the college is a better protection against such offenders than all the law in the land.

The whole population of the United States is furnishing a demonstration of this economic truth every day, for we are all striving to increase our stock of money. The man who hasn't a dollar is trying to get one. The man who has one is working to double it. So is the man who has a thousand. So is the man who has a million. The man who has more money this year than he had last year is called prosperous. The industrial community that is increasing the stock of money at its command is called prosperous. And when the country is increasing the stock of money, through the product of its mines or importations from abroad, even President Cleveland, Secretary Carlisle, Senator Sherman, ex-President Harrison, the bankers, capitalists, money lenders and all the opponents of free silver between the two oceans unite in calling it a sure sign of national prosperity.

And everybody knows that the converse of this is equally true, viz., that a scarcity of money is an evil thing—whether to an individual, a family, a community, a State, or a country. It is always an inconvenience and disadvantage and sometimes a calamity.

The great influx of gold and silver into Europe that followed the discovery of America by Columbus did more for commerce, letters, art and human rights than all other agencies acting together for the 800 years preceding. And it is well known that the marvelous age in which we live owes its prodigious achievements in discovery, invention, exploration, colonization, settlement of wildernesses, migration of peoples, founding of States, industrial production, distribution and intercourse, to the great increase which California, Nevada and Australia contributed to the world's stock of money since 1850.

In the face of these truths enforced by history, political economy and the common sense of mankind, what are we to think of the statesmanship which deliberately deprives the people of the United States of two-thirds of what ought to be their annual increase of metal money by debasing silver from its ancient right of coinage?

JUSTICE BEFORE GENEROSITY.

The School Board's approval of the increase of salaries to its executive and clerical officers and of the awarding of contracts to the highest bidders is a practical acknowledgment that there is money to spare in the public school treasury.

It is reported that 152 millionaires are visiting Duluth. Since the income tax was knocked out these unfortunate gentlemen breathe more freely and go out of doors more. With their 2 cents saved and their minds at rest, it is to be hoped they may enjoy the summer season, which may always a cool spot for them.

John D. Rockefeller's wealth is increasing at the rate of $15,000,000 a year, and it is a great happiness to American housekeepers to pay 15 cents a gallon for coal oil in order that Mr. Rockefeller may realize his ambition to be worth $500,000,000.

Alphonse Daudet has returned to Paris much improved in health by his trip across the Channel and his stay in England. In some fragmentary notes of his journey which have seen the light the novelist expresses much gratitude at the warmth of his reception in England.

WOMEN OF NOTE.

The information in the press dispatches that the attendance at the Memphis Silver Convention differs from that at the Memphis gold standard convention, because there is a larger proportion of men from the country and small towns, is significant. It emphasizes the fact that this convention is not like the preceding one, a gathering of men of one class to subserve their special interests, but a representative assemblage or men of all classes who are gathered together to support a great principle vital to the welfare of the whole people. Its voice will speak for the plain people.

It is to be hoped that no further notice will be necessary. Pride in the appearance of the city should unite with considerations of public and private expediency to make the enforcement of the ordinance a success.

CHEATING AT COLLEGE.

The Post-Office Department has been asked to put a stop to the traffic in commercial oaths and essays. It seems that there is a factory for the production of such effusions, which are offered to students who have not wit or industry enough to write their own essays nor honor enough to accept the consequences of their shortcomings.

College authorities will probably discover that the policy of suppression will not work. A young man who is constrained to cheat in order to save credit has got so little from education that it is a waste of time to try to compel him to do right. With his education has failed as a mental and moral training. He lacks the first principle of a good character, the very foundation of morality, and it is useless to attempt reform by coercive measures. He can be brought by his senses only by the wholesome contempt of his fellows which is sure to follow exposure.

Of course a wrong may be done worthy of punishment whose class day honors are thus stolen by sneak thieves, but this may be minimized by due vigilance on the part of instructors who can in most cases detect a fraud. Detection should be followed by instant exposure and public disavowal. Once let it be understood that this is the sure fate of one who cheats, it will not be necessary to call in the aid of the law.

Moreover, such practices reflect upon the institution itself and indicate a moral weakness in the management. A college which turns out such graduates fails in its purpose and should reform itself without delay.

A high standard of honor among the students and moral efficiency in the college is a better protection against such offenders than all the law in the land.

It is not necessary for the Democratic State committee to put their ears to the ground to hear the "invaluable tread" of Missouri Democrats who want a convention.

The ordinance makes it the duty of owners, agents or occupiers to keep the sidewalk and gutters in front of their property clean and free from all garbage, rotten fruit, old paper and other waste matter. The same rule applies to alleys and requires snow to be promptly removed from driveways and sidewalks.

This is a salutary regulation in which every citizen is interested. The public health depends upon cleanliness and the observance of proper sanitary rules and every one should cheerfully co-operate in the work. The enforcement of the ordinance is confined to the Mayor and police, but it ought not to be necessary to invoke the authorities. It should be enforced by individuals, each for himself, without a reminder in the form of arrest and fine.

It is to be hoped that no further notice will be necessary. Pride in the appearance of the city should unite with considerations of public and private expediency to make the enforcement of the ordinance a success.

When the historians of the future write the chronological record of the few years past and a year or so yet to come, they will refer to this time as the epoch when one of the most important events in American history took place—the epoch during which the American people awoke to a realization of the importance of self-expression—of social culture—the perpetuation of form and beauty through a brief sojourn of life. They will note that scientists and physicians of every country, years before the epoch, published learned essays on the evidence of the human family, giving the when and wherefore of it all, that a time had come when it was necessary to stop the decline. They will also note how little attention was paid to these discourses, and how the authors were called "alarmists" and "extremists," if not openly derided for their views. It will be noted how the sun shone by these far-seeing writers, who took up their task and came plain to the mass of the American people and the epoch of the new woman, female emancipation, physical culture, dress reforms and the scientific study of beauty began. If the historians are impartial, they will describe the year of the beautiful woman during this epoch, brushing aside the clouds of mock modesty, the vapors of Puritanism, the fog of other conventional ideas and enlightening the world with a new truth that had been hidden by the conventions of the preceding epoch of the Christian Era. This figure, it may be modestly said, will be that of Mme. Yale, who, in the 20 years of her experience as a beauty scientist, lecturing, writing, posing, illustrating and prescribing, has done more to benefit the health and beauty of the world than any other woman in the present era. In the list of benefactors of the human race, her name should rank with those of Pasteur, Koch, Bernheimer, Edison, Tesla, Bell and others, who have made the earth a pleasant place to dwell upon through their efforts.

But the effects of her reward were slow in arriving, but it has come at last and Mme. Yale is now recognized in America, as well as abroad, the premier and master of her profession. Years of study and close application to her art have given her a complete grasp of it, until by word of mouth or with her pen, she can command beauty to appear at will, as readily as she can command the weather. Her reward was slow in arriving, but it has come at last and Mme. Yale is now recognized in America, as well as abroad, the premier and master of her profession. Years of study and close application to her art have given her a complete grasp of it, until by word of mouth or with her pen, she can command beauty to appear at will, as readily as she can command the weather.

The products of Mme. Yale's scientific research are toilet requisites, foods and nutritious ointments for the various organs of the human body. Her products have taught her to need to aid nature in restoring the continued destruction going on as much as food is required to sustain life. She has been the first to bring in the line and the first to give to the world a complete line of beauty aids. The fame of this woman, her sincerity in her purpose, and the efforts of her to benefit the world caused a sale of the toilet requisites made by her, such as was never heard of before, and which is truly remarkable. How deeply rooted is the beauty idea in the minds of St. Louis ladies, and how determined they are to follow out the reform idea of preserving form and feature is shown in the following extract from a letter we were asked to express themselves, in a cordial manner, on the sales, the merits and the use of Mme. Yale's toilet preparations for the scientific cultivation of natural beauty.

Everything in the druggist's line that is put on the market is market and is salable in the market on the shelves of the Meyer Bros' Drug Co.'s big establishment at Fourth and Clark avenue, and from there it is distributed over the greater portion of the United States. The goods are put on the market and just who passes upon every thing that is taken under the roof. The fact that an article is sold by this house is in itself, a recommendation, but in addition to the article comes from a member of the firm, the highest compliment that could be paid to it. It must certainly merit it.

"We've sold Mme. Yale's toilet preparations ever since they were first introduced," said Mr. G. J. Meyer. "We have disposed of large quantities of all her goods and have always found that they give satisfaction. Druggists in St. Louis and outside have ordered these goods from us and others don't know when an article has merit by the sale of it, and the constantly growing demand for it. With Mme. Yale's preparations the sale has increased at all times of the year, and the reason for it is plain.

"The lotions, soaps, skin foods and developer mixtures, and all the other articles for the skin, we have never heard of a failure or a complaint. When we first found a market for Mme. Yale's goods we sent an order for 100 boxes, and the same we thought would last us 60 days, as we are careful in our purchases and do not wish to overstock ourselves. The first order was 100 boxes, and then we ordered four times the quantity. Sales increased, larger orders followed, until at present, when we order a lot of 1,000 boxes, we thought would last us 60 days. This is a remarkable sale, even for a wholesale house like ours, where we buy and sell in large quantities.

"There are many reasons that account for the popularity and the great faith the people place in Mme. Yale's articles. They contain nothing injurious to the skin and are really harmless, as the maker claims them to be. They are scientifically prepared in a perfectly equipped laboratory by skilled chemists, who are always on the market and hold high rank in their profession. Strictly speaking, they are medicines, for they accomplish what recognised medicines do, and they are made of the purest possible combinations of chemicals. Another point in their favor, and a very good one, too, is the way the goods are put up in rich looking packages, and clearly printed labels and directions of various colors. Any article would lend grace to or ornament a lady's dressing case.

"The introduction of Mme. Yale's goods in the United States has opened up the eyes of many, I have no doubt. Prior to their coming the market was filled with all kinds of toilet requisites of many different qualities and qualities. A full line of toilet articles was not issued by any house and consumers were obliged to order one article from one manufacturer and another of a different manufacture. Then Mme. Yale announced a complete assortment of chemically pure articles of a uniform style, she created a craze for them among the ladies. Of course, she did not find the preparation did as represented, until they now recognize Yale as the master of all toilet necessities. Her goods are certainly the best, and the best of the others. Right here is a point upon which too much stress cannot be laid. We all know as well as Mme. Yale does that a lady's toilet is to be complete with one article. She must have two or more. In selecting them it would be well for her to consider the ingredients of each article, for instance, do not chemically conflict with the ingredients of the face powder, or that there is nothing in the soap that will neutralize the action of the face powder. When toilet articles of various makes are used, the person using them is never certain that one does not offset the possible good of the other. Mme. Yale makes all of her own articles, and her chemists in preparing them are set up as a separate article. The result is that the desired effect or cure has been produced and the beneficiary would buy it again if twice the regular price were charged. There are many who buy Yale's goods or they would not sell as they do. In preparing this complete line of toilet requisites she has represented the manufacturer, and has a good and has learned what is necessary for the treatment of the many parts of the human system. None of her remedies is set up as a separate article. The result is that at the same time a complexion bleach. She has a preparation for everything—for freckles, for the hair, for the growth of the eye, droops, for the growth of the eye, droops, for the growth of the eye, droops, and so on down the list. None of the preparations seem to antagonize the others, and therein lies her secret."

"After her many years of study of the anatomy, the structure of the human cuticle and the action of the human skin, Mme. Yale should have solved a problem that has long been troubling woman kind or that she should make a great discovery. In discoveries. The ingredients were known before, but she has learned the secret of combining and applying them to get the best results. Mme. Yale's toilet articles, her developer, the La Freckla, the skin food or complexion bleach, and tincture, are every direction for use, and will not only improve in looks, but also in general health."

In the cream and gold place of perfumes and drugs on Sixth and Locust streets Mme. Yale's exclusively wrapped toilet articles, in white and gold, occupy a large and conspicuous place. Their dairy appearance is quite unique in keeping with the taste and order surrounding them, much so, in fact, that they seem to have been especially prepared for the prominent part of the store they occupy. Elmer Miller, a veteran chemist and proprietor of the drug store, was asked to express himself on the value, merit and salability of Mme. Yale's toilet preparations, and to give the facts why they are complimentary or otherwise.

"Nothing can be said of any of Mme. Yale's toilet goods but the highest compliment, for the facts warrant it," said Mr. Miller's rather positive reply. "Mme. Yale's toilet goods take precedence over any other goods in the market. Before these articles were put on the market, and prior to the public lectures on beauty culture, when she came to St. Louis, she was compelled to preserve every particle of beauty that possessed, the women felt timid about calling for any toilet preparation that was advertised. This is no longer the case. We have always been liberal advertisers, and as we always mail order our specialty, we have built up a big business. Country people would never do the same complexion preparations, and as a rule they do not use them, but Mme. Yale's directions on how to use her preparations are as much of a guide to health as they are to preserve youth and beauty."

Mme. Yale's List of Toilet Articles." A large sign leaning against the side of the building on North Broadway, at the North Broadway, attracts the attention of every passer-by, and every one pauses for a moment to read what follows. They see a list of some length with two prices quoted after each article—one being the regular charge for each preparation and the other the price of mince in the store. This pharmacy is on the business street in the business street in the city, and the unique method of Manager Gibson in advertising from the passing throng.

"That sign," said Mr. Gibson, "is what you might term putting the best foot forward. Mme. Yale's toilet articles are a standard of any article that has such an idea for a foundation. Every one of Mme. Yale's toilet requisites has that foundation. She will be using her money in applying each preparation. The fact that they are perfectly harmless and pure, coupled with the serious and unquainted commendations of the public has been benefited by their use has made them popular. People of every class buy them, the poor as well as the mistress, and the men folks also. I could name a number of every article, but, of course, a few are in the lead, such as the Complexion Cream, La Freckla and such like. Mme. Yale's goods have had the greatest success of any toilet articles ever placed on the market, and I have sold more of them than any retail druggist in the city."

The interviewer called on Mr. Wolf of the Wolf-Wilson Drug Company, at Sixth and Washington avenue, he dropped in on the manager, who was not at home, took his turn much as a depositor would do at a bank on Saturday afternoon. Finally Mr. Wolf was reached, and the interviewers pictured as it occurred the usual frequent breaks where Mr. Wolf excused himself to walk on customers on the floor. The interviewers were seated, though eight clerks were busy as bees, doing their level best to wait on everybody. The drug store has been on this spot for three years, and the Wolf-Wilson are at present heavy advertisers. This may explain the rush.

"We have bought Mme. Yale's goods ever since they were put on the market, and we have increased our orders every time we bought a new supply. The sales have been very satisfactory. They are far greater than any other of the goods we handle. You can't say too much for Mme. Yale's Hair Tonic. It is beyond the power of any article of its class to or ornament a lady's dressing case. Complaints, did you say? Never a one. I have yet to hear from one of my custom-

The Sweet Odor of Almonds

Clean, pure and pungent, pleases the nostrils as the cork comes from a jar of Mme. Yale's Celebrated Almond Blossom Complexion Cream. For years and ages women have sought a safe and certain preservative of the complexion. This sun in summer and the heat of stoves and steam in winter make Nature's work too hard for her. The dust that is always in the air grinds itself into the sensitive skin. Soap and water are not enough to get it out and to soothe and soften the dry, chapped skin.

Yale's Complexion Cream

Will do it. It cleanses the skin and its pores, softens the foreign matter within and without, soothes all irritation, cools the heat of chapping and fever blisters, and gives a salutary surface to the suffering skin.

It is good for burns and for any abrasion. A single application is effective. Put it on at night and rub it briskly into the skin and you will be pleasantly astonished in the morning. There have been imitations of this wonderful beautifier. Look out for them. Accept nothing but the real.

Vanderbilts Inaugurate One Against
Mrs. Willis K. Vanderbilt.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 12.—When the three hundred guests at the Burden-Sloane wedding at Lenox got back to town last Thursday night, they brought with them the biggest piece of gossip that society has known in a long time. In short, it is: The Vanderbilts have turned on Mrs. Willis K. Vanderbilt, the divorced wife of Willis K. Vanderbilt.

The way in which the family and its connections have been treated is singular. Mrs. Vanderbilt received no invitation from the Sloanes to the wedding. On the other hand, her former husband was welcomed with open arms. That was all society wanted.

It was soon known at Lenox that Mrs. Alva Vanderbilt had not been invited, and Miss Constance Vanderbilt received an invitation in Europe, but declined to be present where her mother could not come. Also the wife of Willis K. Vanderbilt was one of the most honored guests. It was too, that his nine-day trip from Gibraltar aboard the "Vanderbilt," his palatial steam yacht, was for the purpose of getting ready for his new wedding, and for no other reason. He had brought with him one of the most splendid wedding gifts that have ever been given, but the diamond stars, fashioned of perfect stones, each one set on a slender gold stem, and arranged that the gems quivered with every movement.

Now comes the strangest part of the story. The Vanderbilts have tacitly arrived at an understanding among themselves, and are demanding that all in all the families allied by marriage—to have nothing more to do with Mrs. Alva Vanderbilt. Furthermore, they will not have where she goes, if she goes. That decision will go into effect when she arrives at Newport. The families of New York, who have agreed to oppose a company of Vanderbilt allies, should they even wish to, can be counted on the ten fingers. They would not figure much against the rest of society.

Besides, there are many who have been opposed to Mrs. Alva Vanderbilt's well known exclusiveness. Their time has come.
